Robotics and automation has become the center of attention for investors and financial analysts around the world. This is not surprising given the sector's strong growth and increasing potential to conquer new markets and application fields.

From June 19th to 22nd, 2018, the automatica in Munich will present a unique opportunity to discover what is really happening in this field. automatica is the world's leading trade fair for robotics and automation. No other exhibition in the world showcases as many robot applications and innovations. Our event takes place at the startup area of automatica.

We have created an event tailored to the needs of the financial community that will bring you up to speed – packed with information and opportunities to network with the people that matter.
